

Of course he looks tired. For two years he's been working on a cure for cancer.

Even though cancer death rates are declining, his job isn't done.

Biomedical research has made magnificent strides in conquering some cancers, but many challenges remain.

Scientists and doctors depend on white rats – and other research animals – in their ongoing quest to prevent, treat and even cure cancer in all its many forms.

Animal Research Saves Lives.

AMP

AMERICANS FOR MEDICAL PROGRESS

444 N. Capitol St. NW, Suite 417, Washington, DC 20001
202-624-8810 • www.amprogress.org

